

Kameleon Software Hosted Services: Letting You Run Your Business While Kameleon Manages the Technology

Managing the technology underlying your business is probably not a favorite task. It's not, after all, the business you're in. Kameleon Software's hosted services can take away much of the burden, giving members of your team Internet access to Kameleon's proven applications while leaving the headaches of data center management to Kameleon. You gain a predictable IT expense without having to buy system servers or worry about their upgrades and maintenance.

Kameleon's hosted services make its applications available to companies with as few as 25 users. The services are priced to put Kameleon's unique, comprehensive project delivery business logic and Oracle's industry-standard 10g technology within the reach of small businesses. A typical hosted configuration consists of five back-office users and twenty or more project and/or account managers.

So why do more and more businesses turn to Kameleon's hosted services?

Hosted services make the IT budget go farther

When you use Kameleon's hosted services, you don't have to pay for software in one big up-front lump sum. Instead, a ramp-up plan can provide additional functionality or modules as you grow into them. You avoid buying software you don't need right now, but you can easily add it when you do need it. This means you don't overpay for dormant software or live with amortized capital expense allocations. You recognize period expenses more closely matched to your business growth.

Concentrate on your business, not technology trends

When Kameleon hosts your software, it assumes the responsibility for managing systems hardware, data center space, application support, system security, the mix of skilled human resources that make it all work, and any upgrades or incremental server purchases that growth requires. You avoid all these technology headaches. You only need provide your own PCs and Internet access.

Faster time to value

Hosting means you don't have to spend the time researching IT infrastructure purchases so you can get down to the business at hand, bringing Kameleon's powerful project accounting applications online, and quickly.

Kameleon dependability

Kameleon wants you to be successful since your success helps their business grow. The hosted service is staffed by experts, including the people who wrote the software. They have a vested interest in delivering good service and continually finding ways to reduce costs because they carry the burden of delivering you high value so they earn your fee each month.
